

Success Story

My Story: Manik Sharma

I grew up in the busy capital city of India, New Delhi.

From my parents, I learned the value of hard work and that is why I always investigated global opportunities in my industry.

Right from the beginning, I knew that an entrepreneurial vehicle could create some life changes. I'm always fuelled by passion and commitment.

Today that passion has helped me, and presently I have a global online business in essential services.

I always believed that "Attitude is what we think, what we feel, what we eat and what actions we take".

Seven years ago, I had a Diner and bar which I ran for five successful years. I have around twenty-one years of working experience with different International Hospitality Organizations such as Sheraton Group, Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines, Constellation Group of Hotels, Radisson Group along with leading hotel chains of India and fine dining restaurant as well.

I have also done my master's degree in international hospitality management from Le Cordon Bleu University, Australia.

Being a busy traditional business owner in the past, I was always juggling between family and work life. Not having a balanced lifestyle got me to the place where I started to assess different business ideas.

After some market research I came to a realistic conclusion that I should invest my time in an online business, as it can give me leverage and I can run the business from the comfort of my home, which would give me and my family more time to spend together.

I started my ACN business in global essential services and have built my online business across Australia and I did it all part time, outside my family and work life.

It all comes down to the decision we make in life. And that decision for me has been purely based on a compelling 'WHY' and that's the driving force in my life.

To be comfortable in life, first we have to get uncomfortable in life.
